

HAAG has achieved Rainbow Tick accreditation. The Rainbow Tick is a quality framework that helps organisations show that they are safe, inclusive and affirming services and employers for the LGBTIQ+ community.

Our LGBTIQ+ project is proudly supported by the Liberty Pride Network. Our services are supported by the Victorian Government, Primary Health Networks, the Wicking Trust, the Ian Rollo Currie Estate Foundation and other philanthropic funders.

Housing Information and Support for Older LGBTIQ+ People

Being included

Housing for the Aged Action Group (HAAG) welcomes all members of the Lesbian, Gay, Bisexual, Transgender, Queer, Intersex & Asexual (LGBTIQA+) communities to access our housing services, to participate in our organisation and our campaigns for housing justice, and to work with us.

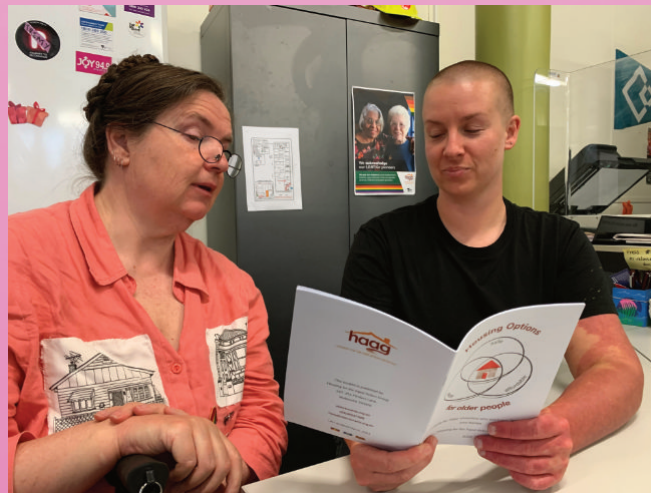

Our services are available for Victorians aged 50 and older, and for Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander people 45 and older. We welcome people of all cultural backgrounds, abilities, ethnicities, gender identities, intersex variations, sexual orientations and religious beliefs.

You don't have to disclose your gender or sexuality to receive inclusive support from HAAG, our team can help you access housing information and support no matter what your background.

Getting Support

We all need secure and affordable housing to be safe and healthy as we age. That's why we provide information and support for people who need help finding a home they can afford, help finding Aged Care, and help with issues in private rental and Retirement Housing.

Call 1300 765 178 for free and confidential advice.

Getting involved

Older LGBTIQA+ people in the private rental market face increased risks and are more likely to be at risk compared to non-LGBTIQA+ older people. 60% of LGBTIQA+ older people do not know where to go for help and information about their housing options. Reliance on informal support networks coupled with historical discrimination leaves older LGBTIQA+ people vulnerable to homelessness.

Our LGBTIQA+ reference group are raising awareness about homelessness in the community, improving inclusivity in our organisation, and campaigning towards housing justice for older people. Get in touch to find out how you can get involved in the group!
